TIME

Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered for they are gone forever. — Horace Mann

"A time to laugh — a time to weep."

"A time to work — a time to play."

"To everything there is a season..."

Time touches everyone

No one can escape it. Seasons come and go leaving their imprints on each of us. Wars, births, deaths, peace — all are Time's instruments used to carve lifetimes out of eternity

Time touches everyone.

"A time for war — a time for peace."

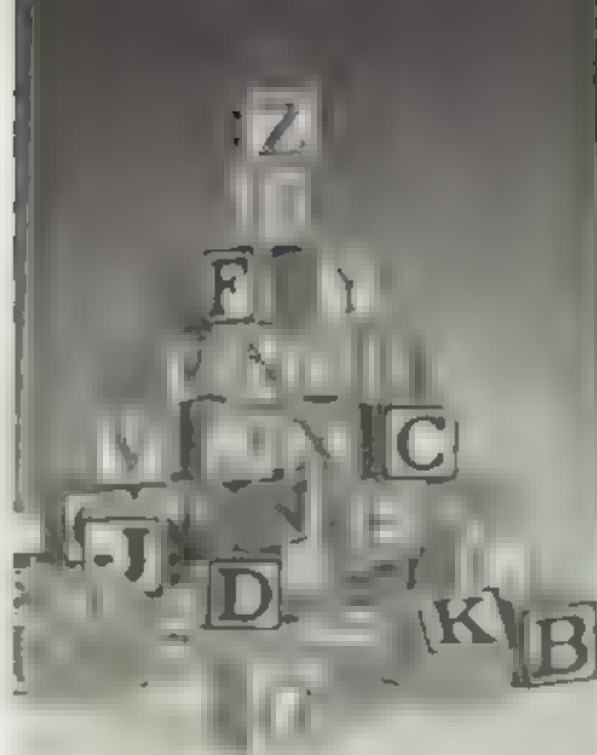

"A time to be born — a time to die."

and a time for every purpose under heaven”

Time touches everyone

It manipulates man like a puppet on a string. Whether we gain, lose, plant or reap every human emotion and purpose is directed, controlled and limited by Time.

Time touches everyone.

“A time to build up — a time to break down”

“A time to gain — a time to lose.”

"A time to plant — a time to reap."

"A time to cast away —
a time to gather together."

A
time
of awakening

School day activities began before arrival at school. Seven o'clock found 789 students awakening to tumble out of bed to the accompaniment of their ringing alarm clocks. Hustling into their wardrobe for the day, a new school outfit or the favorite jeans, they headed for the kitchen and a meal to start the day correctly. For about 90 percent of the student body, breakfast was often interrupted by a beeping bus horn, but the others relaxed because they knew the faithful car would get them to school by 8:15

(Upper Left) Jay Johnson slumps over the breakfast table, until he eats his bowl of 'get up and go' for a hearty first meal of the day. (Above) "Maybe a quick drag around town would wake up my face," groans Jr. Tucker while warming up the car engine. A

arrival

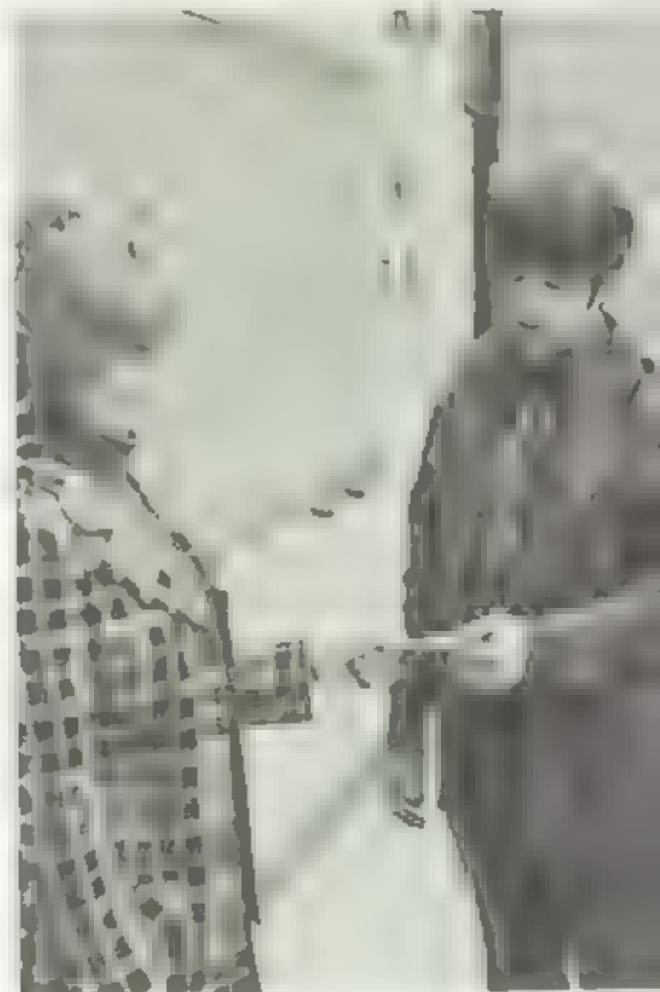

By 8:15 students were pouring into the school. Regardless of whether they rode a short distance or from the outskirts of Owen County, upon arrival, they united their efforts into one school body. Strolling couples or gossiping groups related their previous evening's events, before dispersing to classes.

(Top Left) Darlene Grubb and Ginger Newport find Jim Franklin's joke amusing as other students passively roam the halls prior to first period (Above) Before school finds couples such as Darlica Miler and Mike Little meeting in the halls. sluggishness

First period began with a feeling of sluggishness, which faded as one slipped into the routine of class again. As class goals came into mind, one's attention was finally focused on the instructor. Many students started their day with the first hour spent in pursuit of business interests. Business subjects were a popular selection with an estimated 72 percent of the student body enrolled in these courses. However, only 12 percent actually majored in business.

the blahs

Girls, especially, found a business major helpful in pursuing admission to secretarial schools, but an increasing number of boys discovered the numerous jobs open to them in the business field. As the end of the period drew near, a case of the blahs often set in and one began to listen attentively for the sound of the bell to cue the end of first hour.

(Top) "Follow these instructions carefully and a mysterious shape will appear before your eyes," says Mrs. Nancy Bullock, math teacher, to Kent Dunning. (Above) A quick thirty winks and a sneaky breakfast is Ginger Pruett's recipe for drifting through her first period class. (Right) "Even the tiniest eraser crumbs can mar the workings of a typewriter," warns Mr. Jim VanBuskirk, business instructor, to student, Cathy Hogan.

(Top Left) "Owen County could use a few more blacksmiths," jokes industrial arts chairman, Mr. Tom Telgemeyer, with Kevin Wise. (Left) "Will the company make a million or lose a million?" ponders Carol Ooley as she balances her worksheet. (Above) Busy hands change a shapeless blob into a beautiful creation on the potter's wheel

interruption

Interruption was the name of the game. Second period began with morning announcements given by Vice-Principal Herbert Edwards. After the announcements, approximately thirty-five percent of our academic students could settle back in their college prep classes of math, science and language.

(Left) Mad scientist, Mark Ellis, carefully mixes his deadly brew guaranteed to knock off any science teacher (Above) "Don't forget to look for the symbolism found in Romeo and Juliet," offers Mrs. Karen Veith, English department chairman, and student teacher, Miss Sharon DeBonville, to bewildered Beth Bowling and speculation

Speculation for our academic students was choosing a college to attend. Almost twenty-seven percent of our students will attend a four year college while eight percent plan to enroll in a school of higher education. Our academic classes challenged students to plan their future.

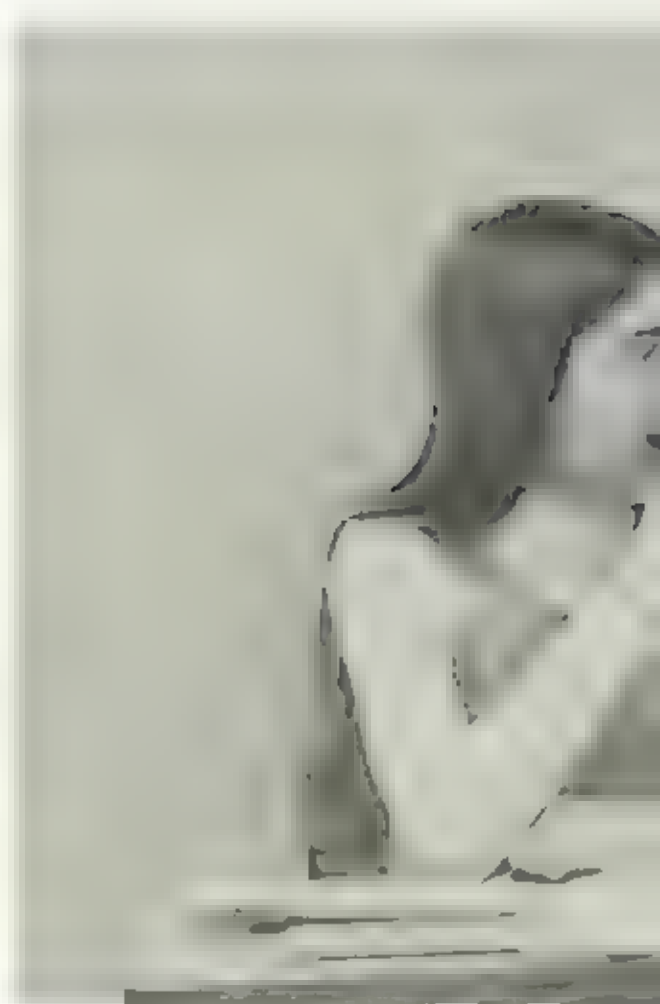

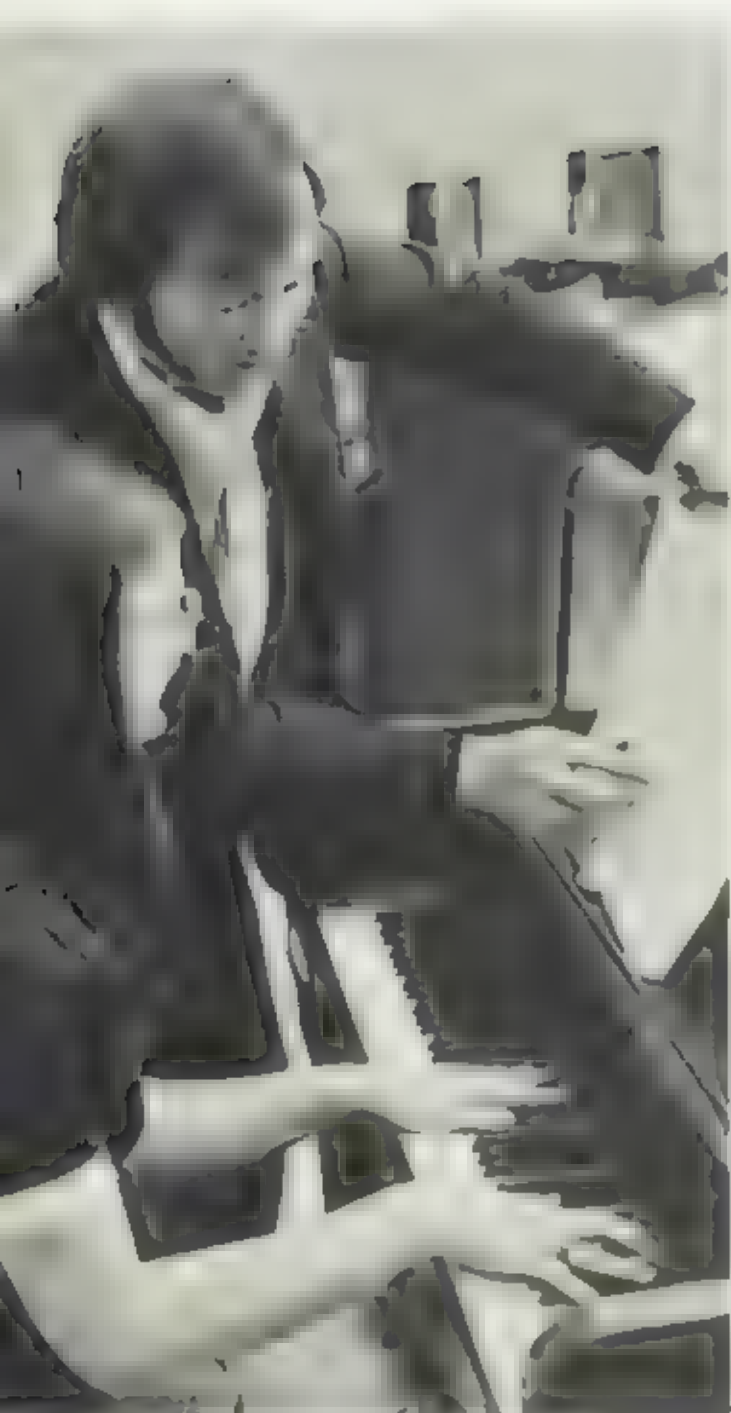

(Top Right) Marla Clark receives fair warning from typing teacher, Mrs. Marguerite Sexton, of a future test on the techniques of transcribing a mailable letter. (Above) "Well, I guess it's back to the grease guns in shop class," sighs Mike Nanny, vocational education student, as he steps off his bus in Bloomington. (Right) "Good thing you've got a hard head," jokes Dan Mullis to stuntman Jim Franklin as he warms-up for drama class.

hunger

Evidence of hunger started showing as third period arrived. Besides eating on our minds, many thirsted for the first time of the day for some knowledge and a little fun. The most difficult task though was of the industrial art students who suffered through the smells of the cafeteria and home ec. students' bakeries.

(Top) Home ec. teacher, Mrs. Marie Kinney, shows Cathy Long, Tonya Whaley and Tammy Campbell how to make valentine cookies for their sweethearts. (Right) No, this isn't how to steal an engine. It's Mr. Scholl, industrial art teacher showing his class how to disassemble and reassemble an engine

anticipation

For many industrial arts students third period was a time of anticipation. Students who chose the industrial arts curriculum, which made up 17 percent of the student body, were given the opportunity to work on class projects throughout the year. Auto mechanics students studied the internal combustion engine and anticipated rebuilding the machine; while beginning industrial ed. students took on a class project in which they were to draw up the plans for the construction of an ideal model house.

of leisure

Ah! Lunch time. The hour that renews us! Such were the feelings of all the students at Owen Valley as they escaped from the hectic pace of the daily school scene to enjoy a leisurely lunch. A total number of 400 boys and 389 girls spent their noon hour playing basketball, listening to the new jukebox or just rapping with friends. Again this year smoking and a closed campus were controversial issues. Some students chose to risk getting caught and go against the rules by sneaking outside or into restrooms at noon in order to smoke.

(Above) "Not only do I get you ready for the world, but I also get the world ready for you!" laughs Junior-Senior guidance counselor, Mr. Keith Hertweck, to Vickie Long and Tina Adkins. (Right) Will Doug Tucker's long hours of practice be rewarded with membership as one of the "76" famous trombones?

of confusion

Speeding to class or to the front of the lunch line made fourth period the hour of confusion. This was especially true for those privileged agriculture students that hustled their class time in order to have an early lunch to avoid the rush.

(Above) It looks like Owen County might have to furnish the band with a policeman for the typical fourth period last minute rush for instruments. (Top) During practice Mr. Jerry Warmuth, band director, casts a wary eye on the pit band as one member loses the beat. (Right) Social studies department chairman, Mr. John Moore, points out to John McGuire that the paper shortage hasn't hit the Senior Scholastic yet

expectation

Agriculture interested almost 10 percent of the student body. The activities offered included farm management, live stock production, and overall conservation. Students were intrigued by this vocational curriculum with expectations of one day owning their own 100 acres of rolling farm land.

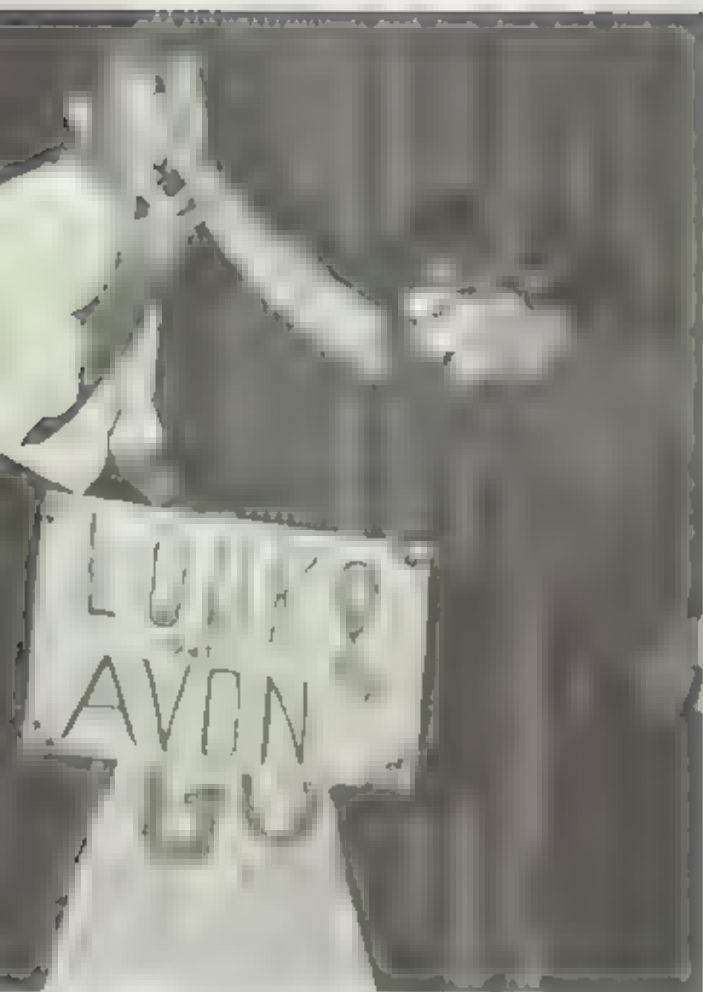

(Above) Sandman, Paul Monroe hopes that one more sanding will make the wood as smooth as silk (Top) Graphic arts and woods teacher, Mr. Tony Smodilla, shows Andy Freeman, Bob Jukes, and Dennis Miller how to print paper instead of fingers. (Right) Librarian, Mrs. Linda Harl, appears to be puzzled as Debbie Sturgell asks for a book on proprioceptors for her term paper.

(Right) "Wadda-ya-know" is the expression of the team as it rains balloons on the varsity basketball squad during the pep session preceding the Martinsville Sectiona

time

Spirit and fun were the main objectives of the numerous pep sessions that were held. A new tradition was started this year with the birth of Hippie Hawkins Day. This day was a Patriot Guide Staff contribution to add more spirit to the halls of O.V., and it accomplished its purpose. All were dressed for the occasion in country clothes with a hippy air about them.

(Top) A peace wisher, teacher Mr John Moore, "hangs loose" as a flower child on Hippie Hawkins Day. (Center Left) Candidates for the dating game, Darlene Grubb, Teresa Boler and Veronica Worland nervously await Lyman Bowling's decision as M.C., Butch McClure, prepares to announce the lucky winner. many signs painted by cheerleaders for the sectional reflects hopes for a victory. (Left) "I'm big, bad Bloomington North," bellows teacher Mr. Jon Chaffin as he expresses his assurance of victory in the outcome of the sectional where the trophy is wrapped-in-foil Miss Mary Feeny.

entertainment

Senator Bayh and Congressman Myers attempted to enlighten students about society's problems and suggested their answers at enthusiastic convocations. Chuck Bisset entertained students with his songs and clever bits of comedy. Presentations of "Poetry in Black" and "Hands Across the Sea" described different walks of life. Celebrating Halloween and promoting school spirit teachers "tricked and treated" the school in a masquerade of costumes

disappointments of black men in America during a theatrical performance. (Above) Senator Birch Bayh and Congressman John Myers show their interest and involvement with today's youth by sharing their thoughts and time with them through conversation and expressing opinions during question-and-answer time

satisfaction

When noon hour had disappeared for another day and 1:15 appeared on the face of the clock, students nestled into their daily classwork. At this time of the day everyone digested their lunches with the satisfaction that their hunger was arrested for a while.

(Top) Mrs. Sue Schneider, art teacher, admires the masterpiece being created by Debra Wieking and Loujean Walt. (Right) Social science teacher, Mr. William Carr, demonstrates the method of statistical techniques in the study of various societies

resumption

The resumption of nibbling on snacks during class activity was especially tempting to students taking home economics. These courses had the smallest student enrollment, approximately nine percent, but interestingly enough that amount included a number of male "libbers." Only the greatest self control kept the student chefs from constantly tasting their gourmet creations. Cooking was only one asset of this curriculum. By offering a course in family management, students were prepared for everyday living.

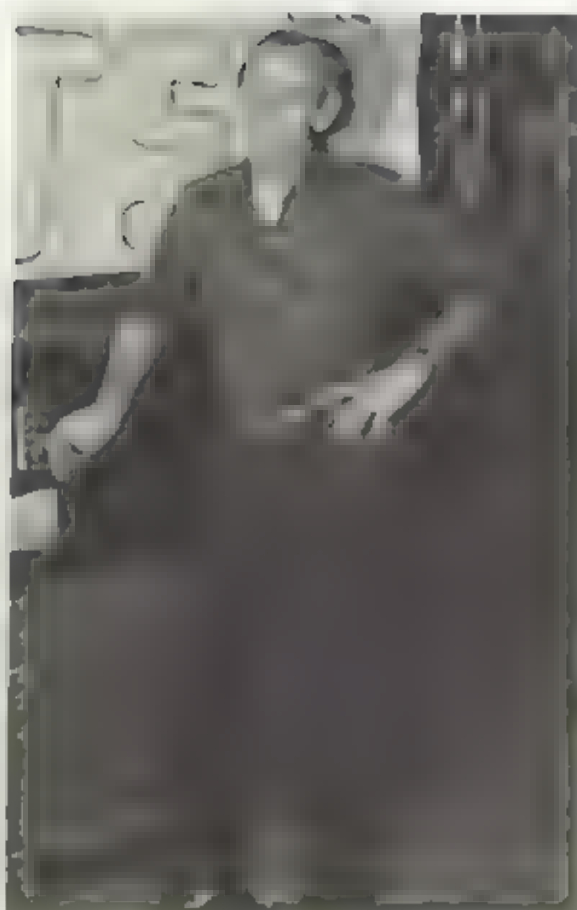

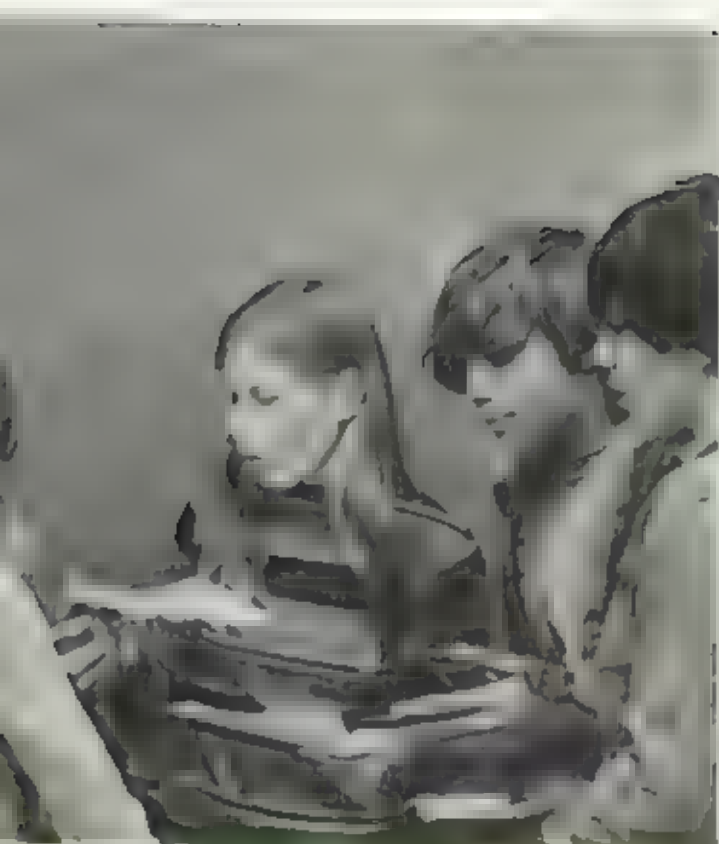

(Top) Mrs. Carolyn Dayhuff, office secretary, performs one of many office tasks by selling school books to Mike McKinney and Jeff Maners. (Top Right) History teacher, Mr. Jon Chaffin, attempts to "psych" out his students with his trick pictures. (Top Right) Jon Wetzel hits the bullseye as Mr. Richard Dyar, science department chairman, compares Jon's target to a human eye. (Center) Maintenance head, Mr. Pete Brinson activates the automatic bleachers in preparation for a spirited pep session (Above) Giving a sign of satisfaction, Mrs. Nancy Bullock distributes report cards to homeroom freshmen, Curt Burkhardt and Tim Brinson. (Right) Is it a lesson in artificial respiration? A
of exhaustion

As students approached the end of a full day, activities continued during sixth period and though a sense of exhaustion crept up on everyone, the time for learning still existed. The general curriculum, the path chosen by almost twenty-seven percent, let students explore many different subject areas.

(Top) Math department chairman, Mrs. Virginia Gook, demonstrates to Jan Lyon that if accurate measurements are used your result will come right to the point. (Above)

From business instructor, Mrs. Susan Paxson, John Strouse and Becky Seeman find that the stock market too has its ups and downs.

(Right) "Look ma, I only had one cavity!" (Bottom) Susan Pearson weaves a magical creation in macrame for her arts and crafts class

fulfillment

The general curriculum at Owen Valley was primarily for those students who didn't intend to study at higher institutions of learning. Usually the students who chose this route of education throughout high school were those who planned their futures in the working world or planned to marry soon after graduation. This type of learning offered the broadest form of education. As the final bell of the day sounded, the grind of the school day came to an end with a feeling of fulfillment.

(Right) These boys are taking advantage of the new universal gym at Owen Valley. This gift, valued at $3,000 was donated by the citizens of Owen County. (Below) Susan Stalcup shows art instructor, Miss Mary Feeny, that art class isn't "all work and no play" as she introduces a new way to finger paint her ice cream cone during a snack stop after school. (Right) With a busy school day, DeLeah King finally finds time to do her spring cleaning

A Time

escape

The loud shuffle, clang and chatter of feet, lockers and voices were once again a familiar scene as students met at the end of another school day. After a quick good-bye to a friend, a pitstop at the restroom and a final trip to a locker, each student escaped from the routine classroom scene via bicycle, car, or bus. Some went to after-school jobs in town or did chores at home. Others got ready for a night on the town with a heavy date. Several just put on their jeans and went truckin' around town looking up friends and then got together at favorite hangouts for conversation and refreshments. All anticipated the exciting events the evening held for them.

(Top) Placing highest in competition, academic winners proudly display their ribbons. (Above) Perfect lines and diagonals are finally achieved by the marching Patriots at Band Day after countless tiring rehearsals. (Right) Varsity cheerleaders beef up their skills at acrobatics during after-school practice. (Far Right) "Get on your mark, get set, GO!" are the words running through Gloria Miller's head as she practices speed and timing at the starting block.

of

reward

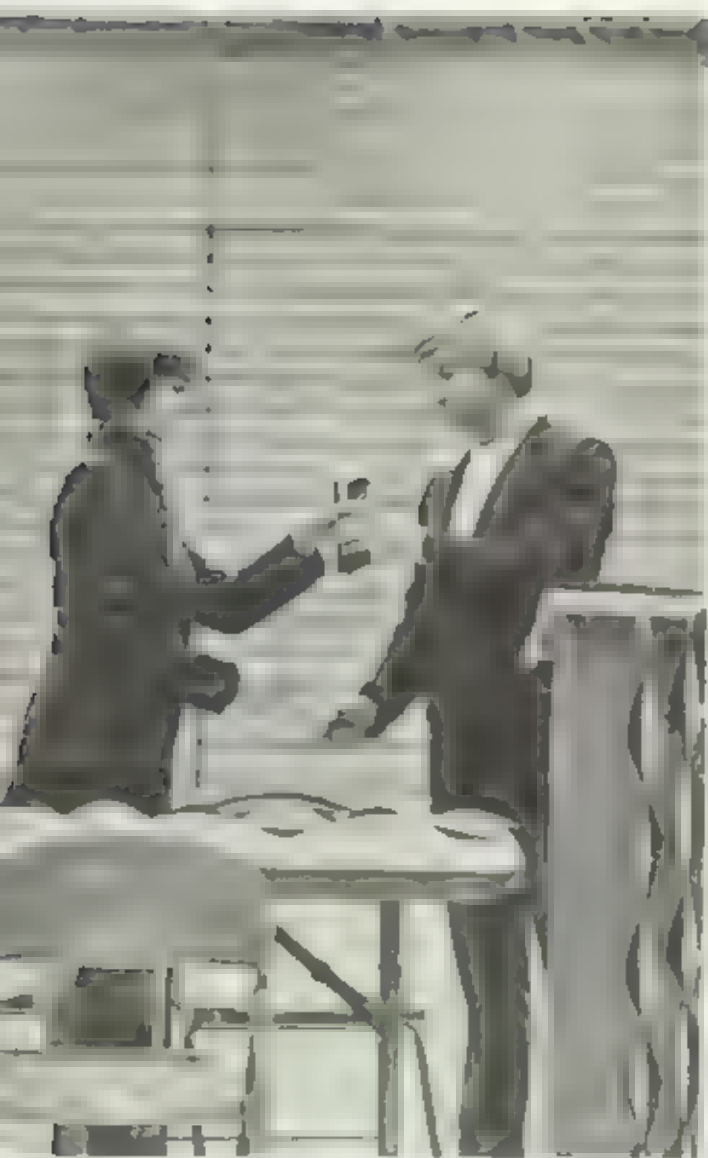

With many after-school hours of practice for marching, running, yelling, biking and studying, students of Owen Valley captured numerous awards for their efforts. The band placed ninth on Band Day at the State Fair, our baseball team was second in the conference and our academic students won the most first-place awards at the academic contest at Monrovia.

New Coach Fires Up Grapplers

The Cross Country team failed to find a victory this year although Coach Bill Carr discovered much individual talent within the small squad. With the proper coaching techniques applied, many runners had developed their running styles by the end of the season.

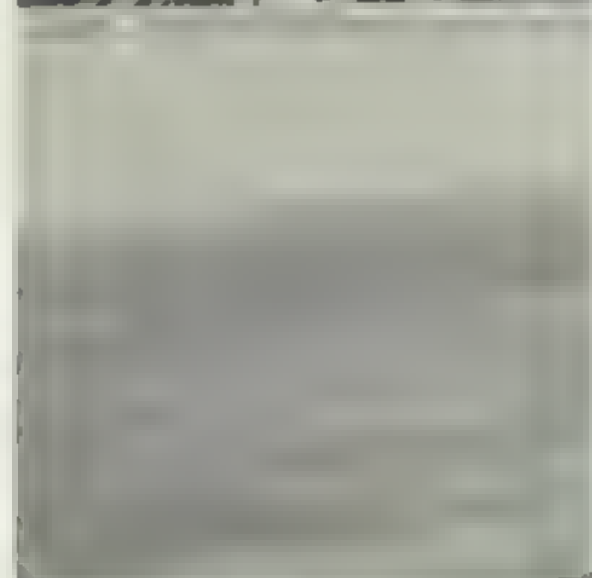

Under the supervision of the new Wrestling Coach Lester Smith, the wrestling team experienced one of its finest seasons with a record of 7-3. The season was highlighted by a 6th place sectional placement and also with a third place standing in the WCC.

(Lower Right) B-team golf players putt around the course trying to improve their game and work for a varsity position.

Golf Putts 17-3 Record, Ten Men Make Track Team

The beginning of the golf season this year saw the coaches skeptical about the golf team and the outcome of the season. The squad started out its schedule with one returning letterman and all other members had very little experience. The young team's inexperience was not evident when they drove into the season with a four game winning streak. Three close matches, which were decided by one stroke in favor of OV, made a more impressive record of 17-3 for the season.

This year a total of ten members made up the track team and in many meets depth was a key factor that determined the outcome of the scores. Although the squad was not big, in some specific areas it was mighty. Many first and second places were awarded to OV track men who displayed great individual talent in their respective events. Suffering from a lack of interest and a small number of participants, the track team completed the season with a 0-10 record.

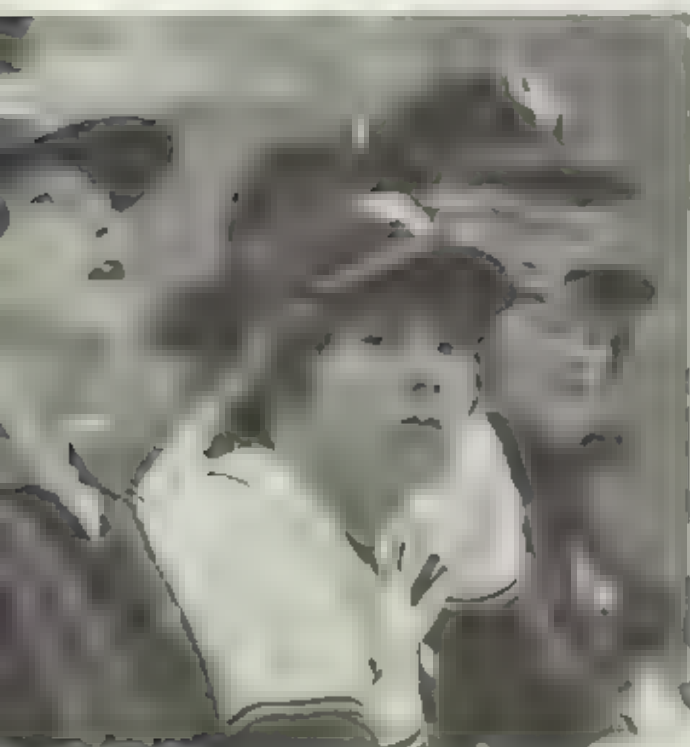

(Top) . . . "And it's away we go." Discus thrower, Walt Smith, anticipates a measurement of over 100 feet as he follows through with his throw. (Above) Track team members prepare themselves for competition while

Puts End Season With 15-6 Record

The Varsity and J.V. Baseball teams both got off to a spectacular start and held it all through the season. With a powerful hitting staff, the Patriots kept teams at bay. Proof of this was having three members on the all-conference team — Mike Cheeseman, Jeff Carpenter and Mike Freeman. In the sectional they played Bloomington S. and won by 3 to 2 and then played Bloomington N. and lost 2 to 5 for a 15-6 season record.

of socializing

Evening hours revitalized many study-tired students with a variety of activities for socializing. The FHA tested their modeling abilities with a spring style show, while students and parents got an opportunity to ask questions at an open school board meeting held at the school. Quill and Scroll members were encouraged to continue in journalism by guest speaker, Cheryl Scutt and the yearbook staff acquainted themselves with a new publishing company. Campus Council was busy both before and after school with meetings, special verdicts, and early car leavers. One Drama Club bake sale produced funds for future plays. The newspaper staff highlighted their activities with an all school Hippie Hawkins Day winding up the day with a rock dance that night.

FFA And FBLA Win Language Clubs Tour

Most clubs found this a year for enchantment and accomplishment. Whether it was going to France, Mexico, or Italy, or just a one day excursion to Chicago, Muncie, or Notre Dame, the clubs' achievements were evident

The choir's performance in "The Music Man", and the Art Club's display at the Civic Center made the community aware of the various talents of the students. FBLA and FFA made the other schools conscious of their rigid competition by taking top awards at their state meets.

Girls Win — Boys Lose In Senior-Faculty Games

Football Club grew in popularity, with the largest membership in the school. The induction of 25 new members in National Honor Society immensely increased the sale of trees. Photography Club members found that learning to develop their own pictures brought a feeling of accomplishment.

A first for GAA girls was the receiving of sweaters for their participation in competitive sports. While the annual Senior-Faculty games sponsored by the Letterman's Club, saw the girls victorious over the female faculty, the boys lost their victory hopes when they were overpowered by the men.

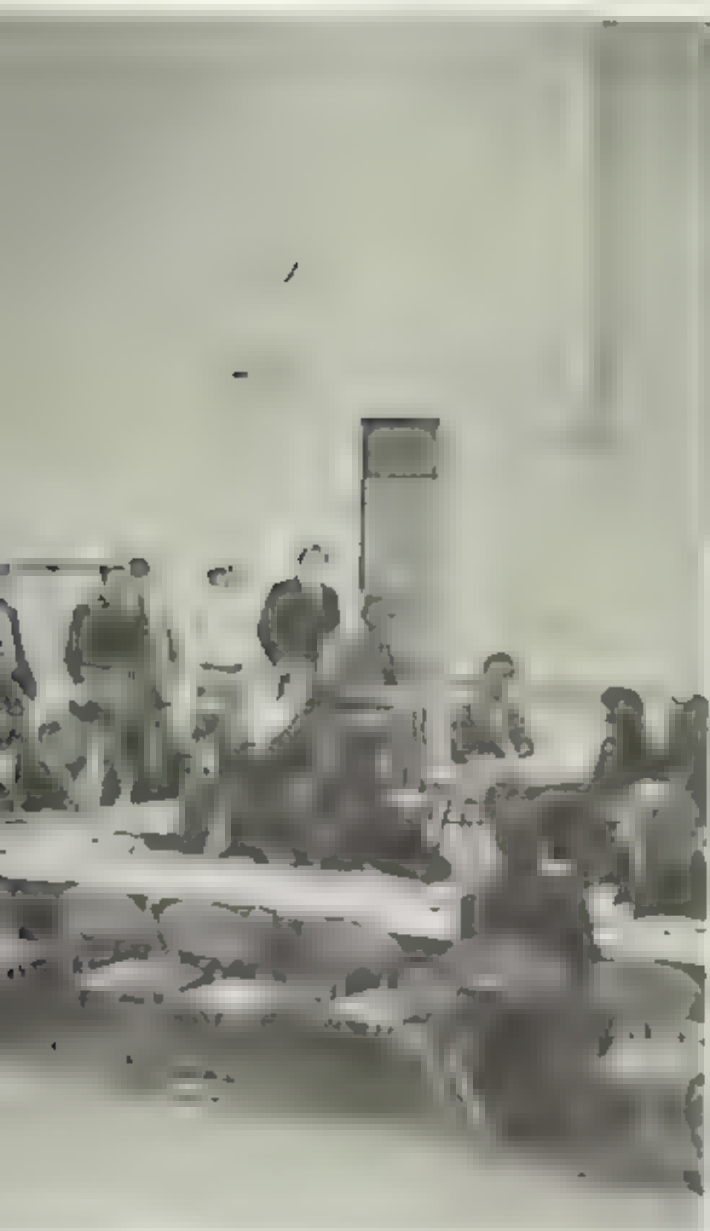

(Above) "This is well worth the tiring practices and tough games," sighs Jack Lanham as Tammy Winders helps him into his letterman's jacket. Gridders Maintain Spirit During Painful Season

A few years ago varsity football was introduced to Owen Valley, and in just three years' time the game has generated much enthusiasm and spirit. Many fans participated along with the coaches to help boost the morale of the team.

This year it was that same spirit and determination that kept the gridgers moving all through the year. The Patriots found themselves small in number but mighty in spirit when they marched over Monrovia in the first game of the season. Moving on into the season, the small squad suffered many injuries and misfortunes which plagued them during a three-game losing streak.

Although the season was a tough one, the Pats never died. They kept the team spirit high and went on to complete their schedule with a 4-5 record.

Girls Take Their Place In Sports

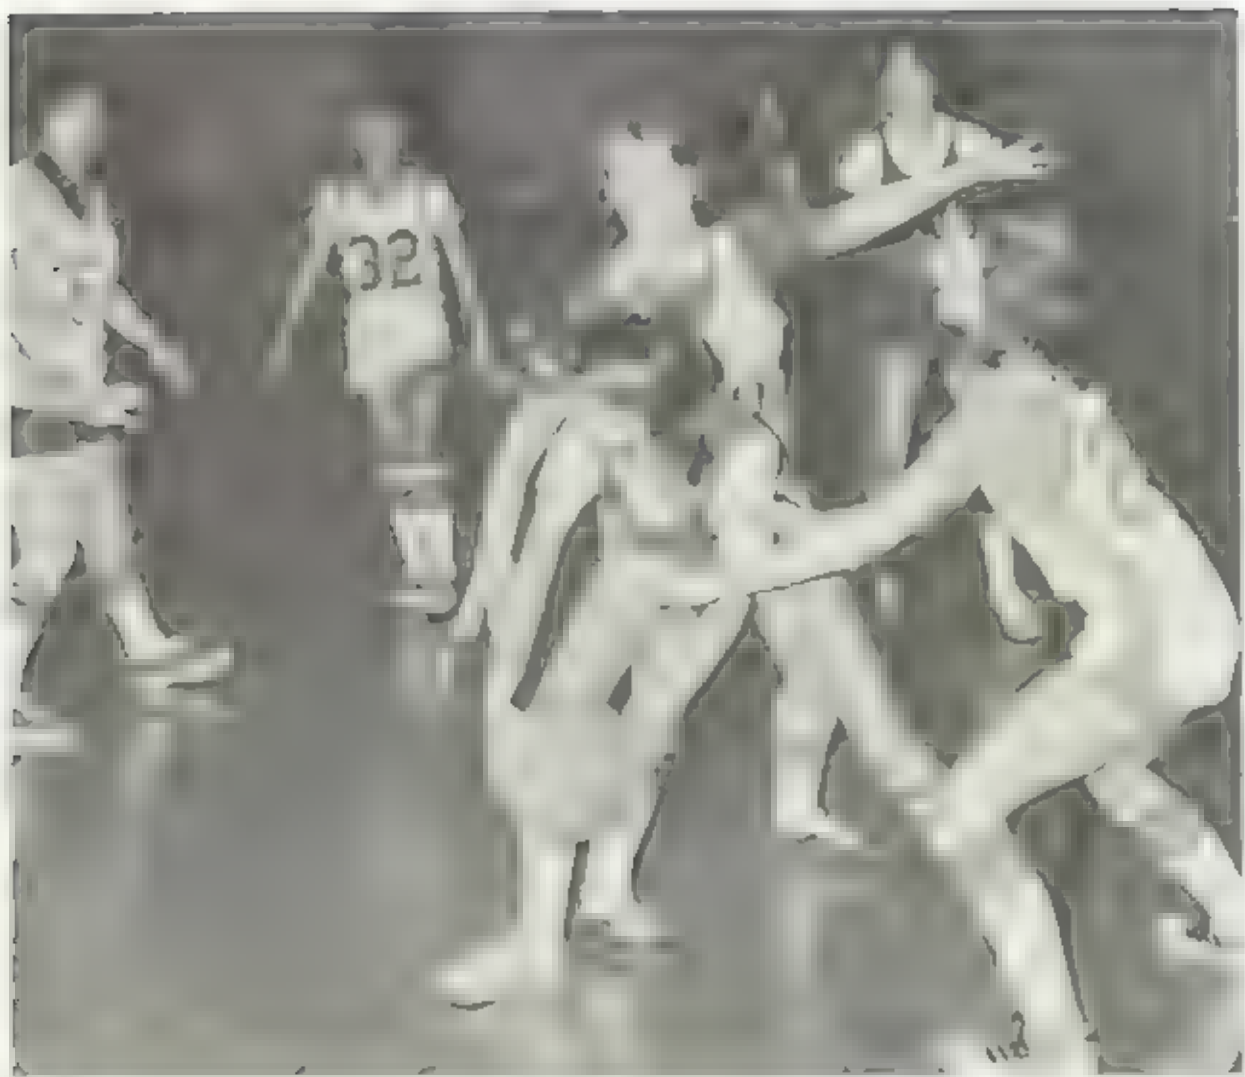

Trying their hand at basketball, track, and volleyball great advancements were made by girls in the field of sports. Even though winning didn't come easily to the girls this year, they learned what it took to work as a team

Girls were honored for the first time at the winter sports banquet, and sweaters were presented to the girls for their participation in their field of sports. Also, Lisa Swafford and Pam Johnson received trophies for the most valuable basketball and volleyball players.

Patriot's Inexperience Produces A 500 Season

With only two returning lettermen it looked like this would be a down year for the Patriots and Coach Heckman, but with a few games under their belts, things started coming together and they started beating the best teams in the area including Clay

City. They also finished second in the WCC and easily could have been in first place with an 11-11 season. Two of the highlights were Mike Freeman and Junior Tucker setting individual records in rebounds and scoring in one season respectively.

(Top Left) Junior Tucker jumps for two as Mike Freeman turns to rebound just in case. (Above) Coach Heckman stresses defense and hustle this year and probably at this time out, too. B-Team Hot, Halfway Home, Turn Cold

The B-team, under Coach Dick Dyar, got off to a fantastic start winning seven of its first eight games, but then they ran into some troubles and had to settle for a 10-8 record. The team, though, gained valuable experience which will help next year's varsity out quite a bit in every department, as they were never outclassed in any game.

(Top Left) Things seem blurred but it's just that the B-team cheerleaders never stop moving — not even for our photographer. (Left) Teamwork prevails as Tom Wallace gets ready to pass. (Above) Pep band music adds spirit with varying musical scores

Frosh And C-Team Have Tough Year

Playing a tough A and B system the members of the freshmen squads gained a lot of experience as did their new Coach Ron Eaton. The A-team played a fifteen game schedule and the B-team a twelve game schedule, but many tight games gave each team a losing season. The teams exhibited great hustle and showed great promise.

The C-team though, had a short two game season with both games in the loss column. The players enjoyed their short season and improved as much as could have been expected.

“Stairway To Heaven” Holds Cherished Memories

Before the prom was . . . happiness and excitement of the night to come. A golden moon setting the spotlight for swirling music and stars, while a breeze floated in time to the music, girls that shone in enchanting gowns while boyfriends were dazzling in their tuxes. A corsage traded for a boutonniere and a final check made before a picture was taken.

After the prom was . . . breakfast, bruised feet, smeared mascara, stomachaches, and tired eyes, but most important — memories that would be treasured forever.

Seniors To King's Island, Honor Pietzuch With Watch

The year had been one filled with excitement as seniors ended the year with many special events. A day in the courtroom was a new experience for many. A Saturday trip to King's Island before graduation gave seniors a final chance to share good times. On achievement night, seniors were presented with scholarships and awards for special areas of accomplishment. Mr. Pietzuch, yearbook photographer for 27 years, was presented with a gold watch from the faculty and student body for his loyal service and dedication to the school

Now Ends, Tomorrow's Time Begins

The class of 1974, being united as freshmen in name and spirit but separate in location, became the first four-year graduates of OVHS. The class worked towards a prom of "Pieces of April" and a Senior year of fun during which developed lasting memories and friendships. With graduation, the time for separation came again. But this was not the end — it was tomorrow's beginning.

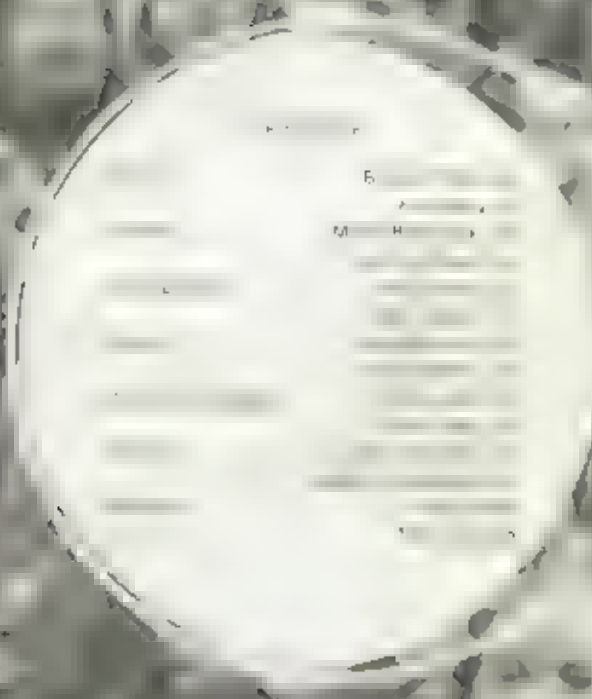

(Top) Addressing the senior class of 1974, Reverend Howard Anderson emphasizes the importance of each of us as an individual in today's technological society (Above) Remembering all the time, work, and fun put into an education, Olicea Franklin keeps in mind that it was all worthwhile as she receives her diploma from Superintendent Ned Smith

We Thank . . .

Mr. Rex Moonshower of Western Publishing Company for his hints and suggestions; Tammy Powell and Jo Ellen Freeman for their cover design and artistry; Mrs. Ruth Granich for her tedious proofing; Mrs. Ann Rinne for her insisting on the best from each of us for a final job well done; advertisers for their financial support; Mr. Howard Pietzuch for his final year — ending 27 dedicated years of photography service to the yearbook; junior staff members for their apprenticeship to senior members; and our main concern — you, the reader, for your patronage to the 1974 Triad.

Weep not for seasons passed,
Yearn not for those yet to come.
Look ahead to the horizon,
Taking the world as it comes.
Live life for today,
Neither fearing the future,
Nor regretting the past,
But let the past
Guide you to tomorrow.

By David Mather

Norman,

Hope your years in High School will be years to remember. You one guy I'm sure not to forget. You really a guy who does what he wants. Good Luck!

Norman,
Remember the fun days we had in 5th grade. And in High school. Hope were friends always. Best of Luck
